

21. Answer: A

Resistance, $R = \frac{\rho d}{A}$, where d is distance from X. Hence, $\frac{\rho}{A}$ is the gradient of the graph, which is inversely proportional to the cross-section area of the wire, A . So, for the thinner sections, the gradient is steeper.