

20. Answer: A

Since the potential difference between consecutive equipotential lines are the same, the spacing of the equipotential line (i.e. $\frac{dV}{dr}$) indicates the electric field strength. Smaller spacing (i.e. higher $\frac{dV}{dr}$) nearer to the charges implies higher electric field strength.