

|    |   |                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|----|---|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|    |   | the two waves will arrive anti-phase and their resultant amplitude is zero.                                                                                                                |
| 18 | C | The voltage is maximum at anti-node. Distance between adjacent anti-nodes = 60mm Wavelength of stationary wave = 2 x distance between adjacent anti-nodes=120 mm |
| 19 | D | Using $d \sin \theta = n\lambda$ ,                                                                                                                                                         |