

|    |   |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|----|---|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|    |   | $\frac{Q}{4\pi\epsilon_0 d}$                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| 20 | C | Electric potential <math>V = \frac{Q}{4\pi\epsilon_0 d}</math> At distance <math>\frac{d}{2}</math> from point charge, electric potential <math>= \frac{Q}{4\pi\epsilon_0 \frac{d}{2}} = 2 \frac{Q}{4\pi\epsilon_0 d} = 2V</math> |
| 21 | A | $\frac{Q}{4\pi\epsilon_0 d}$                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |